It was discouraging work for Eichinger at the start. About the first ray of encouragement he received was a letter from Mr. J. A. Foster, a banker at Guthrie Center, who wrote: "Half an hour ago I received your letter in regard to a river-to-river dragged road. It's a practical project. Guthrie Center wants to be on that road. I have called a mass-meeting of the citizens at the City Hall this evening to discuss it."

But let Eichinger tell his story. He says:

"Guthrie Center held its mass-meeting. Foster was named head of a committee to select a route through the county. Men were chosen to take up the project with the road officers in each township in the county to be crossed by the road. They were to visit the farmers along the road and to report to the committee the condition of the highway."

"In the first mail next day there came a map of Guthrie County, a heavy black band indicated the route selected. A page of writing told of the condition of the road and what was proposed to make it right. The day following its receipt this map, four columns wide and as deep, together with the story of the selection of the road, appeared on the front page of the Des Moines Capital. Copies of this issue of the paper were sent to every name secured in the twelve counties through which the road was to pass, to every commercial club, automobile association, every county and township officer, whose name had been secured from the county clerks."

"Then things began to hum. Personal appeals went out to the liveliest men in each county. 'Call your automobilists, commercial clubs, business men, supervisors, and township officers together. Pick a route, and send a map of it to the Capital,' was the request."

Two Caves Fall In

Last week while Mr. J. R. Scrivenor was building a fence close to the foot of the knob he felt a right foot sinking in the ground and by jumping he avoided falling into a hole which was made by the earth caving in. The hole was found to be twenty odd feet deep and to have water in it. About the same time Mr. William Russel, who works on the farm of Mr. H. K. Jagers, of the Hillview section, was plowing with a horse and a mule; when going through a flat bottom the ground under the horse gave way and the horse sank in the ground up to his head. Mr. Russel removed the harness so that the mule would not be pulled in and he ran for help. The horse had a leg broken and died soon after being taken out. The hole fell in about fifteen or twenty feet. It is conjectured by some of the older citizens of the community that this section is over the Echo River, known so well by all who go through the Mammoth Cave.

His head was much larger than the head of an ordinary man. He was a son of Henry Williams, of this city, who is six feet tall.

MADDENED ELEPHANT

KILLS HIS TRAINER

Picks Up Victim In Trunk, Hurls Him to Ground and Tramples Upon Him

Dickson, Mo., May 10.—Hundreds of persons yesterday saw an infuriated elephant hurl his trainer into the air and then, after crushing him with its weight, repeatedly pierce the body with its tusks.

The tragedy came while James Hildebrand, the trainer, was endeavoring to put the animal, which belonged to a Wild West show, into a car. Hildebrand was adjusting the chains which bound to the elephant its mate.

Without warning the animal became enraged and wrapping its trunk around the trainers body, lifted him high into the air and then dashed him to the ground. It is believed he was killed instantly.

With its rage unsatisfied, the elephant began kneading the trainer's body with its fore feet. Then it dragged the body thirty feet along the railroad tracks in the yards and repeatedly thrusts his tusks into it.

Attaches of the show ran to the rescue with pitchforks and drove the elephant from its victim. It was not subdued until its sides were streaming with blood from the goads.

Immediately after the tragedy the elephant was shot. Hildebrand had been the trainer for years and frequently slept beside the elephant.

R. F. D. NEWS

If all the 90,000 horses used in the rural free delivery service in the Postoffice Department were stood in a straight line from New York to San Francisco there would be a horse every 46 yards. The distance, as the crow flies, is 2,350 miles.

Forty thousand men do the work and practically all the carriers have two horses, while some of them have three, made necessary by long, sand or hilly routes.

Now, three horses, on an average, only lasts three years at the work, which is very hard. They are worth, say $100. each.

So it follows that the carriers must have one new horse on the average every year, to the tune of $3,000,000, and this three million goes to the farmers on the different R. F. D. routes for the most part.

It costs $100. a year to feed a horse sufficiently well so that he can stand to draw his buckboard or buggy over the route—and we find the farmers another $9, 000,000 from this source.

The figures grow stupendous. They sound like Standard Oil or war statistics.

Thus we have $12,000,000 annually paid to farmers which they did not receive before the days of rural free delivery. It is a new source of income.

Vehicles and harness, bicycles, motor-cycles, and an occasional automobile cost the R. F. D. men $3,000,000 annually. Here we have a new set of beneficiaries—bicycle dealers, automobile salesmen and harness makers.—Ex.

Sample Helps Frail Women

So many women are dragging out weary lives just because their digestive organs are weak. The result is poor circulation, nervousness and the verge of invalidism. It is often very unnecessary and the woman's own fault.

The first thing to do is to look to the welfare of your bowels. There the trouble usually lies. All physicians know that a large percentage of women are habitually constipated, and from this results indigestion, piles, nervousness, etc. You will find that when the bowels move regularly once or twice a day all your petty ills will disappear. Take a good, mild laxative tonic like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin for awhile and you will find yourself rapidly getting better and stronger, your bowels will regulate themselves and work at stated times, and then your headaches and dizziness will disappear. Don't take strong cathartic pills or salts, but just such a mild and pleasant-tasting remedy as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

You can obtain a bottle of your druggist for fifty cents or one dollar, and either size may be enough to permanently cure you. Thousands of women keep it regularly in the house and will no longer be without it, as it cures them and can be used with safety by every member of the family, down to the youngest child, but if you have never used it take the advice of Mrs. Earl S. Cox, 409 Twenty-fifth street, Moline, Ill., and Mrs. Ellen Duncan, Muncie, Ind., and send to Dr. Caldwell for a free trial bottle, as they did, and learn for yourself what it will do in your own case. That it will cure you, as it did them, there is no doubt.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, R. 590 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

Swamps To Be Drained Deserts Irrigated.

Contending that it is as logical for the United States Reclamation Service to take water off swamp lands as it is for Uncle Sam to put water on prominent arid lands, many men prominent in commercial and professional circles who are identified with the Board of Control of the National Irrigation Congress, which meets in Chicago next December 5th to 9th, declare that the legality of the government employing funds created by the sale of public lands and by bond issues for the reclamation of privately owned southern swamp lands will without doubt be established within the next year.

Through the work of many in the north who are interested in the reclamation of southern lands as well as western projects, and of southerners who are alike interested this year in the work of the National Irrigation Congress, it is expected that at its December sessions there will be adopted resolutions urging that the National Congress be requested to authorize a bond issue by the government for the further reclamation of swamp lands of the south, the bond issue to be in proportion to those which have been authorized for the Reclamation Service in its work of watering western arid lands, there being over $50,000,000 available in these funds.

The influence which the voice of the Irrigation Congress will bring to bear in this undertaking is suggested by the fact that it was the congress which first brought about, through its agitation, the Roosevelt Reclamation Act in 1902. Later, at the Spokane Congress in 1909, the congress adopted resolutions requesting that the government authorize a bond issue for the extension of the reclamation work, and this bond issue was authorized. This resolution read as follows:

"Recognizing economic waste and menace to public health connected with our vast areas of swamp and overflow lands, we request our representatives in the Federal Congress to take suitable action looking toward reclamation of such lands under a policy corresponding to that of the reclamation of arid lands by irrigation under the Reclamation Service. Such reclamation of swamp and overflow lands to be carried forward through co-operation of individual owners, states and the Federal Government. A precedent has been established, first, by passage of reclamation act; next, by use of these funds for the irrigation of lands owned by states, corporations or individuals; finally, by the authorization by Congress upon the bond issue of $20, 000,000, which shall be used for reclamation of arid lands."

A similar proceedings to permit a bond issue of swamp lands owned by states or individuals is all that is necessary to start the government experts to work on the surveys. This, of course, will be followed by large expenditures of money in the consummation of projects now beyond the individuals, corporations, or even the states themselves.

It was this work of the congress that established the precedent through which it will this year again identify itself with the movement for a greater expansion of the work in the southlands.

The original reclamation act provided that the Reclamation Service, with funds obtained through the sale of public lands in certain western states and territories, might reclaim government arid lands in the west by establishing irrigation systems. When the time arrived to begin this work, however, it was found that the United States Government did not have any one body of funds in sole government ownership suitable for irrigation. Consequently, the money was employed for the reclamation of lands which were partly government owned and partly privately owned. It was contended at the time that it would not be legal for the government to reclaim lands that were in private ownership, such as the swamp lands of the south. In time, however, this was just what the Reclamation Service was doing, irrigating lands that were wholly in private ownership, in projects such as the Orland in California, the Klamath Falls in Oregon, and those of the Platt Valley in Wyoming and Nebraska.

One of the most prominent Chicagoans who will be identified with the Irrigation Congress and in the efforts of that organization to have authorized ultimately a government bond issue for work by the United States Government in the south, is W. L. Park, Vice-President of the Illinois Central and Yazoo & Mississippi Valley railroads. Mr. Park is the Chairman of the Attendance and Transportation Committee for the Board of Control. During the year he expects to create a great deal of interest in the congress throughout the south. He already has written the governors of various states, adjacent to his lines, calling attention to the interest of southern states in drainage, and urging that a strong delegation be arranged for, the end in view being to obtain national assistance through a re-endorsement of resolutions favoring work in the southern fields, such as were adopted at a previous congress.

"There are vast areas of the most fertile land in the world, which throughout the south, will not probably be brought under immediate cultivation unless some comprehensive plan is worked out by which the government can assist," said Mr. Park, who has for many years been prominent in western irrigation. "I think the time is ripe to turn the attention of reclamationists to the south. Those high in the administration of the government are known to be favorable to the south in this respect, and it only remains for its citizens to get busy to put under way extensive drainage schemes similar to those now being undertaken in Florida. The Mississippi Valley lands are more fertile than those of any of the other southern states. Their drainage will add health, wealth and prosperity to the inhabitants and invite new settlers."

"The Illinois Central and the Yazoo & Mississippi Valley Lines can be counted upon to co-operate in any movement in this direction."
